RISKY BUSINESS

EXCITING NEW SESSION AT THE CONGRESS

Over the years, a group of healthcare workers have realised that there are huge similarities between disciplines such as healthcare, aviation, high-risk performances, business etc. These settings require clear leadership, complete integration of teamwork, repeated practice and effort to improve performance.

Over the last few years, they have run several conferences (under the label of Risky Business – see <https://www.riskybusiness.events/>) where they have brought together a wide range of speakers from different disciplines and different settings to share how they achieve consistently high performance; reduce error, and manage risk.

The audience has been largely medical and has been consistently amazed at how we can learn from many different areas, such as musicians, including conductors, investment brokers; climbers; astronauts; airline pilots.
